SMITH HAD RELAPSE; HE CANNOT RECOVER

After rallying so favorably as to give attending physician and nurses feelings of almost absolute certainty that he would recover from the hemorrhage of the brain, with which he was attacked while in a berth on a North-Western passenger train two weeks ago, and for treatment of which he was taken from that train at Dixon and rushed to the Dixon hospital, Harold B. Smith, Chicago traveling man, has suffered a relapse, and at noon today all hope for his life was abandoned. ## ANDREW J. MYERS, PALMYRA PIONEER, CALLED THIS MORN

Passed Away at His Residence on North Side at 6:15.

Late this afternoon it was announced that the funeral of A. J. Myers would be held at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at his late residence, with burial at Palmyra.

Andrew J. Myers, a pioneer native of Palmyra township, and for the past fourteen years a resident of Dixon passed away at his home, 109 Everett street at 6:15 o'clock this morning, death resulting from heart trouble. Pending receipt of word from a daughter in Seattle, Wash., arrangements for the funeral had not been made this afternoon.

Mr. Myers was born in Palmyra township, March 11, 1842, being one of a family of eight children born to William A. and Phoebe (Hull) Myers. He was married at Polo on December 24, 1864, to Julia E. Kentner, and to the union were born three daughters: Minnie B. Weatherly, of Sparks, Wis.; Phoebe E. Dose, of Seattle, Wash.; and Hattie B. Weisz, of Dixon. They and four grand children—Julia L. Dose, Andrew and Charles Weisz and Clay Weatherly—survive with his widow to mourn his passing. The brothers and sisters of the deceased: Emma Weaver, of Polo; Helen Nichols, of Anita, Ia.; Harriet Page, of Friend, Mo.; (deceased); America Fender, of Missouri; William Myers, of Polo; Phoebe Kentner, of Seattle, Wash., and LaFayette, of Nebraska.

A friend pays the following tribute to this pioneer: A. J. Myers was one of Dixon's patriotic citizens, loyal to his country, his state, his city, his family and his friends. His passing will be mourned by many, as he was a man of large acquaintance, having been a resident of Palmyra, where he was born seventy-seven years ago, until fourteen years ago, when he moved to his Everett street home.

The moral, educational and physical development of Palmyra grew out of the co-operative efforts of such men as he. He was every ready to lend a helping hand to the needy and destitute wards of the community; and to ascertain where lay the right, and having determined this, he would stand firmly for it although the whole world opposed. As his health failed he often expressed his desire to live long enough to see his country victorious in the great struggle in which it was at that time engaged.

CHARTER FOR DIXON POST 12, AMERICAN LEGION IS RECEIVED

Is Among First Dozen Posts in Country to Organize.

The Dixon post of the American Legion, the organization of soldiers, sailors and marines of the recent world war, is among the first dozen posts in the country to receive a charter, for that instrument was received this week in response to the application signed by 28 Dixon men several weeks ago.

The charter, which is dated June 30, designates Dixon Post No. 12.

This charter is of a decidedly temporary nature, being issued to enable the local post to carry on business until the first National meeting of the Legion, which will be held in Minneapolis November 11, 12 and 13. The National Organization will at that time, probably cancel the present temporary charter and issue a permanent charter.

A letter from the secretary of the Illinois committee on organization particularly emphasizes the point that all who sign a membership application blank before the date of the National meeting, will become charter members of the local post, to which application is made.

Dixon Post No. 12, will hold an important meeting on Thursday evening, July 17th, at G. A. R. Hall, for the purpose of adopting the new charter. It will also be necessary for those who signed the application for charter to be present to sign their applications for membership and to receive membership cards and buttons.

REACH NO DECISION THURSDAY CLOSING

About thirty of the business houses of the city were represented at last evening's meeting at the city hall, which was called for the purpose of making Thursday afternoons half holidays during the months of July and August, but no definite action was taken. The proponents of the plan are not prepared, and announce their intention of keeping up the campaign until a sufficient number of merchants agree to close to make the plan feasible.

CHICAGO WARMLY WELCOMES HEAD IRISH REPUBLIC

Edward De Valera Met By Cheering Crowd Upon Arrival.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, July 12.—Eamonn De Valera, "president of the Irish republic," arrived in Chicago today, accompanied by former Governor Edward F. Dunne, and Frank P. Walsh, who were sent abroad by Irish organizations to obtain recognition for Ireland at the peace conference. A large crowd welcomed the Irish leader. He will remain here three days on a mission to arouse interest in the claims of Ireland for a national entity, before going to San Francisco.

Met By Committee.
The Irish leader was welcomed at the railway station by a reception committee of 100 of which County Judge Thomas F. Scully was chairman, and was cheered as he rode through the crowded downtown streets to his hotel. There were many women in the crowd and hundreds of flags of the Irish republic were displayed.

Mr. DeValera after expressing his delight at the cordiality of his reception said he did not approve the hissing of President Wilson's name at the recent New York mass meeting.

Disapproves Hissing.
"Of course I was in no way responsible for what occurred and I do not want to be put in the position of appearing to approve the unfriendly demonstration," he said. "It is possible that enemies of the Irish cause were responsible for the hissing of Mr. Wilson's name. My idea is that the president of this country being the servant of the people, will do what his constituents want him to do in regard to the Irish question. The purpose of my visit is to obtain expressions of opinion from all classes on this important question."

"I believe that when the president is convinced that the people of this country want Ireland to be free he will act. England has no more right to Ireland than Germany has to Belgium. I still believe that the peace conference should have settled the Irish question. I do not admit that international law rendered this impracticable but even if it did natural human law and the rule of justice were sufficient grounds for the desired action."

Ireland No Slackers

In reply to a question Mr. DeValera emphatically denied the charge that Ireland was a slacker during the war. "Ireland has been fighting the battle of the small countries for freedom for 700 years," he said. "We were led to believe that the recent great conflict had for one of its principal objects the freedom of all countries. We insist that Ireland is as much entitled to freedom as any other question. I shall answer every question raised by the opposition in my public addresses."

The Irish leader shook hands with several thousand men and women at a public reception at the hotel and delivered a brief address in Gaelic in which he repeated the object of his visit to the United States. He said the appeal in behalf of Ireland in this country is being made to every nationality and all classes. He called upon every man and woman who loves liberty to support the movement.

Mission of Value.
Edward F. Dunne, former governor of Illinois, and Frank P. Walsh also spoke expressing the view that their mission abroad had not been entirely in vain. They predicted that Ireland's cause would be the first case of the small nations to be presented orally to the peace conference.

At noon the "president of the Irish republic" was the guest at a luncheon attended by 700 citizens. Later he was taken for an automobile ride over Chicago parks and boulevard system.

Tomorrow he will visit St. Paul university to receive the degree of doctor of laws.

Big Meeting Today

At 3 p. m. he will address an outdoor mass meeting at the Chicago National league baseball park. Other speakers will be Mayor William Hale Thompson, Congressman Wm. E. Mason, former Governor Edward F. Dunne and Frank P. Walsh.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

In a formal statement issued at the white house, M. Tumulty declared the President "deeply appreciated Senator Hitchcock's fine support on foreign affairs and will, at the earliest moment, seek an opportunity to confer with him on all phases of the peace treaty."

VETOES BILL TO END IN; SUNDRY BILL REJECTED

Latter Vetoed Because of Provisions That May Be Serious.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, July 12.—President Wilson today blocked the repeal of the daylight saving law by vetoing the agricultural appropriation bill carrying a rider for that purpose, and, at the same time, vetoed the sundry civil appropriation bill because it would limit the appropriation of money for the rehabilitation and training of disabled soldiers.

Both important supply bills, carrying millions of dollars' urgently needed in government activities and already long delayed by failure in the last congress, must now be repassed without the features to which the president objected or passed in present form over his veto by a two-thirds vote. In both houses which today seemed unlikely.

Indian Bill Signed
At the same time, however, the president signed the Indian bill, the resolution authorizing New York and New Jersey to arrange for a vehicular tunnel under the Hudson river and various minor measures.

In regard to the agricultural bill, the president sent the following communication to the house of representatives: "I take the liberty of returning H. R. 8157, 'an act making appropriations for the department of agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920' without my signature."

"I realize, of course, the grave inconvenience which may arise from the postponement of the legislation at this time, but feel obliged to withhold my signature because of the clause which provides that 'at and after 3 o'clock a. m., on Sunday, October 26, 1919, next, the act entitled 'an act to save daylight and to provide standard time for the United States' approved March 18, 1918, be, and the same hereby is repealed.'"

Serious Economic Loss
"I believe that the repeal of the act referred to would be of very great inconvenience to the country, and I think that I am justified in saying that it would constitute something more than an inconvenience. It would involve a serious economic loss. The act of March 19, 1918, to 'save daylight' resulted not only from a careful study of industrial conditions by competent men, familiar with the business operations of the country, but also from observation of the happy and beneficial consequences of similar legislation in other countries, where legislation of this character has been for some time in operation and where it has resulted, as the act of March 19, 1918, has resulted in the United States in substantial economies. The act was intended to place the chief business activities of the country as nearly as might be within the limits of daylight throughout the year. It resulted in very great economies of fuel and in substantial economy of energy, because of the very different effect of work done in the daylight and work done by artificial light."

"It, moreover, served the daily convenience of the many communities of the country in a way which gave all but universal satisfaction, and the overwhelming testimony of its value which has come to me convinces me that I should not be justified in acquiescing in its repeal."

After receiving the president's veto messages, the house ordered the sundry civil bills sent back to the appropriations committee and voted to take up the agricultural bill Monday.

House leaders were confident that efforts would be made at the time to pass the daylight law repeal over the president's veto, but doubt was expressed that proponents of repeal could muster the required two-thirds vote. Leaders said no attempt would be made to override the president's veto of the sundry civil bill.

REUNION BY REACTION

An Interview with Dr. J. Fort Newton, City Temple, London.

A recent issue of the Universalist Leader contains the following report of an interview given its special correspondent by Dr. J. Fort Newton of the City Temple, London, England. The interview will be of interest to many Dixon people, as Dr. Newton was at one time pastor of the People's church in this city.

"How do you interpret efforts in behalf of the union of the churches now put forth on both sides of the Atlantic?" I asked Dr. Newton, as we talked in the vestry of the famous City Temple, after a recent Sunday evening service.

Still wearing his pulpit gown, he was facing a magnificent painting of Joseph Parker, his foot dangerously near a wall with which he signals for rest when a visitor oversteps his time.

"At the City Temple," he replied, "as you no doubt know, we practice the Christian union so much talked of elsewhere. My gracious colleague is a member of the Church of England, and the greatest woman preacher now living. Her ministry, uniting a life of prayer with a flaming passion adds a whole hemisphere to our work at the Temple."

"I take it, then, that as a result of practical experience, you are in favor of the enterprise of Christian union," I hastened to suggest.

"Indeed, yes. Every lover of humanity," he said, "every one who cares for the things of Christ, wishes to see all the forces of which he is captain united. But I am afraid the outlook is not immediately hopeful, much as it is to be desired. The need is appalling, in face of the sad moral letdown accompanying the war, to say nothing of what looks like the rapid de-Christianization of the modern world. Today we learn from sources only too reliable that 80 per cent of the manhood of England stand aloof from the churches, and have no use for organized Christianity."

"But surely," I ventured to interrupt, "the unutterable tragedy of the war must have brought the churches closer together, and made them ready for union."

"Assuredly," he admitted, "the common peril and horror of the war brought all classes, all churches, all nations nearer together, and many hoped that it would hasten the reunion of Christendom. There were those—like my friend the Dean of Durham—who actually tried to effect some kind of union before the end of the war, thinking that such a dramatization of the Will to Fellowship would do something to evoke a sense of the existence of spiritual forces among us. But it did not happen, unfortunately. Frankly, one begins to feel that the effort in behalf of union is more a sign of weakness than of strength, a futile attempt of the church to redeem itself from its ghastly failure of moral leadership in the greatest tragedy of history."

"But did the church fail in the war?" I asked. "They were active, unitedly active, in every kind of good work."

"During the war," said the preacher, "the church served as a handmaid of the state, an ambulance following in the path of battle, picking up the wounded, ministering to the dying, trying to carry something of the atmosphere of home into the hell of war—and for that ministry all honor. But I measured my words, and specified a failure of moral leadership. To bind up the broken hearted is indeed a mission that the Highest did not disdain, but it is not the highest mission. The highest task that we can undertake is to prevent hearts from being broken and to unite them in a great fellowship of endeavor. The church has always taught right relations in the accepted social system—if under slavery, obedience and kindness; if today, fair-dealing—but has it nothing to say, nothing to do, and no power to change the system for the better?"

"Do I understand," I inquired, "that you regard the present movement in behalf of union as reactionary, as tending to drag us back instead of leading us forward?"

"The Spirit of Reaction in Disguise," he answered quickly, "and manifestly so. So far, at least, it is not spontaneous, in response to a mighty urge of the Christian heart, but apparently the spirit of reaction in disguise, a thing of diction and compromise, of technical tinkering with issues of orders, ordination, and the like, as if Christian union were a matter of ecclesiastical manipulation. So long as such issues in which it is difficult for an able-bodied man to find an interest—uppermost in our thought, it is idle to talk of union."

"Of course, the emphasis on ordination is merely technical," I reminded him, "and in behalf of regularity."

"Yes, I am well aware of the camouflaged flag," he agreed, "and it is an admirable example of the working of the ecclesiastical mind. It moves in the midst of powerlessness, and is more interested in regularity than in reality. I fear. If we are to stand on regularity, why should not our Anglican friends submit to ordination at our hands before they enter our pulpits? When the present Bishop of Hereford preached in the City Temple, no one thought anything about such an issue nobody cared about it. Our concern is for reality, not for the niceties of ecclesiastical etiquette, and when it is a choice between the two, we are not slow to make it."

"The Ecclesiastical Mind," he continued, "When my Anglican friends tell me, 'he went on, not allowing me to interrupt, 'that my church must accept a historic episcopate because theirs will not abandon it, and that the guilt of schism rests on my church if unity is not attained, I am moved to inquire how that can be so. When, in my turn, I ask for some basis of an ecumenical in the Bible, or some proof that one form of polity is more blessed of God than another, I am met by a reference to 'our theory of the church,'—a theory so often pulverized that it needs some courage to name it. When I ask my friends to show that, psychologically, experimentally, verifiably the procedure of God with men in the sacrament, His blessing upon them there, is in any way different from the experience of Him in prayer, meditation, and obedience, I am again referred to 'our theory of the church.' It reminds me of how the old Hindus used to say that the world rests on the back of an elephant, who stands on the back of a tortoise, who stands on the back of a something else. That is how the ecclesiastical mind works, and so long as we move in that atmosphere of unreality and absurdity no headway will be made toward real unity."

"But are you not rather severe in your strictures?" I hinted, in view of the words he had just used.

"Not at all," he hastened to reply; "the time has come when it is inevitable to be frank and to speak what we think and feel in the spirit of comradeship. Reunion by ambiguity is not an inviting outlook. Also, we must be loyal to Christ, and no effort for union is worth while that does not show some sign of entering into his largeness, in which there is room for all, and work for all. I remember, lived and died a layman. He was never ordained. He was not regular. He never preached in a consecrated place. He was not interested in churches; he was interested in men. The trouble is that the church is thinking about itself, its prestige, its consistency, its regularity—and the result is it is left high and dry by the hungry hearted multitudes and the creative currents of modern life flow by it. To the mass of men the church is a tiny section of the community playing a little private game of their own, and getting a private satisfaction out of it. In theory they may be Christian; in practice, in politics, in business, they do not differ from atheists or materialists."

"If you continue in that vein," I said, "I shall think that you are as gloomy as Dan Inge, of St. Paul's. Are there no tokens of hope?"

"A Union Worth Dying For," he said, "Now you come to the part of the subject that interests me," he confessed, rising from his chair and walking to and fro. "Make no mistake, down below this superficial, official maneuver the real Christian mind—the mind that is awake and has an eye for reality—is moving toward a union that is worth talking about—yes, worth dying for. The two master forces that shape our human life are the religious and the economic, and the problem before us is to bring these two into right relation. Until we do that no question of our day is really solved. There are signs to show that the Christian mind is becoming keenly aware of this situation, as witness these manifestoes issued near the close of the war: one by a group of employers in England belonging to the Society of Friends, one by four Roman bishops in America, and one by the Canadian Methodists—and do you know I think that when the Lord made the Methodist church He did not do anything else that whole day, and behold it was good."

"But what had these pronouncements on economic questions to do with Christian union?" I asked in some perplexity.

"Three Prophetic Pronouncements," he replied, "Listen. The three pronouncements utterly independent of each other, were in absolute agreement to the very letter, in their plans and demands for essential social justice—their basic principle being the democratic control of industry, to which they added the items now agreed upon by the best and most enlightened social thought of our time. It is astonishing. It is thrilling! Three widely differing communions—the poles apart theologically and ecclesiastically, Catholic, Quaker and Methodist—yet unanimous and in one accord, as at Pentecost, in their demand for that fundamental justice without which there is no social justice, and which is the basis of a sound human and ecclesiastical life. It is a millinery shop. Surely that fact is prophetic of the direction in which the Christian mind is going, and, perhaps, the kind of unity at which we shall arrive."

"Now, please understand me," he added earnestly; "this does not mean the elevation of sociology into a religion; it means the application of Christianity—not a mere huddle of sects and factions, but a great spirit and principle of being—to the actual conditions of actual life; and the result will be larger realizations of its spiritual wealth, beauty and power. It is the law of Jesus that we know as much as we do. What we need now is religious experience, not of the sentimental kind, but an experience of God—the God who lives on my street in England—that shall issue in faith-producing, life-building power brought to the service of men, women, and little children in behalf of a beloved community. The church must not forget, even for an hour, its labor of teaching, of evangelism, of the culture of the inner life, much less its grand missionary enterprise, but it must relate the Gospel of Christ to the real life of man in all his relations, and it will show itself to be the power of God unto salvation, as in all the past."

"Forgive me for keeping you so long," I said, remembering the bell at his foot, and knowing how weary he was after the service, "but have you no message for the Liberal churches?"

"A Noble and Fruitful Future," he said, "Ah, you have touched a tender spot," he said, resuming his seat. "I think that one of the greatest tragedies in the history of modern Christianity—especially in America—is that the Liberal churches, who have the noblest evangel on earth, have failed to be evangelistic in the high and true sense of that word. It makes my heart ache to think about it. With such a gospel, the Liberal churches—and I do not like to use any adjective to modify my Christianity—by every law, ought to have been a mighty force, adding a great, sweet, haunting chord to our Christian melody. As it is they have done much, but they have a noble and fruitful future if they see the new day making the Christ of today tomorrow and forever the center and circumference of their message. Christ the Re-vealer of God the Father of all, the Redeemer of humanity—its social fellowship, no less than its lonely personal sorrow and sin—who will lead us into the new order of the ages for which our boys died together on the red fields of France and Flanders."

"The sermon on next Sunday evening will show what Bible prophecy teaches about the future of the Church."

GRACE U. E. CHURCH

Rev. C. G. Unangst, Pastor

The following services will be held next Sunday.

Sunday School at 9:45. J. U. Weyant, Supt.

10:45 a. m. Morning Service with sermon on "The Five Objectives of Our United Evangelical Forward Campaign."

7:00 p. m. C. E. Subject "Our Denominational History and Principles." The meeting will be led by the pastor.

8:00 p. m. Song service and sermon on "The Peril of the Church in the Last Days." The interest in the service on last Sunday was intense. In the sermon on "The Test of the World in this Age," the pastor used a large number of Scripture references and it was gratifying to note the interest with which the hearers followed the thought. Quite a number had brought their Bibles and that enabled them to follow the minister in the reading of the various portions of Scripture. It was shown that the supreme question before the world today is, "What will men do with Jesus Christ?" "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life, and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him." John 3:36.

The sermon on next Sunday evening will show what Bible prophecy teaches about the future of the Church.

COMING EVENTS

Saturday

Woman's Club Picnic—Nancassadee Lodge, Assembly Park.

Sunday

Woman's Relief Corp.—G. A. R. Hall.

COLD PACK CANNING

By cold pack canning many vegetables may be preserved for winter which cannot be put up successfully by the original open kettle or old fashioned stewing process.

Cold pack canning is a simple and quick method and the housekeeper who tries it seldom returns to the way mother did. It works on the principle of the water bath, or double boiler.

A homemade coldpack canning outfit may be had by using a washboiler, lard can, tin pail or any utensil which has a fitted cover. A rack made of strips of board, lath or wire netting is required to raise the jar at least an inch from the boiler. Handles at the ends of the rack are desirable. Excellent wire racks shaped to fit the wash boilers cost about $3.

In cold pack canning, the jars are filled with cold uncooked food and syrup (for fruit) or salt and water (for vegetables). Then the tops and rubbers are adjusted and partly tightened, the jars are set on the rack in the boiler, which is filled with cold water to within an inch of the tops of the jars. Next the lid of the boiler is adjusted. It is a good plan to make the lid tightly by placing a fold or two of sterilized cotton cloth beneath it. The food is then sterilized by boiling, ranging from 16 minutes for berries to 180 minutes for sweet corn.

After sterilization, the covers are tightened. Careful housewives usually invert the cans to cool. Some cover the edges of the rubbers and tops with melted paraffin and wrap the jars in paper before storing.

The advantages of the cold pack method over the old fashioned open kettle method are: it is adapted to all fruits and vegetables; it produces a more uniform product with a better color, better flavor and better shape, and it saves time and labor, and is therefore a genuine economy.

The time for sterilizing vegetables and fruits follows:

UNIQUE MONUMENT IN POLO CEMETERY

Tri County Press, Polo. Alvin Joiner, Sr., has just had erected a unique monument in memory of his wife, Ida, who passed to the great beyond early in nineteen eighteen. It is a conglomerate boulder weighing nearly two tons resting upon a cement base and ornamented with a bronze panel or plate.

The boulder is composed of many stones of different kinds cemented together into one huge stone by the action of nature. It doubtless was formed at the bottom of some ancient sea and later carried near the surface by glacial action.

It was first found by Mr. Joiner near the old Joiner home at Chase, Mich., under an old elm tree, which was blown down by the wind.

At that time Mr. Joiner was engaged in the lumbering business and it was the custom to cut out the pine and leave the elm and other trees standing. One of these old elms was uprooted by the wind and underneath its roots was found this especially fine example of a conglomerate boulder. Mr. Joiner had it moved to the Joiner home in Chase where it ornamented the lawn for many years and around and over which the Joiner children played.

After Mrs. Joiner's death Mr. Joiner received his idea from the Emerson monument, conceived the plan of moving this conglomerate boulder from the old Joiner home at Chase, Mich., and have it mark the last resting place of Mrs. Joiner.

He finally succeeded in buying it and then had it sent to Polo and erected in Fairmount cemetery.

METHODISTS AND EPISCOPALS WIN ONE GAME EACH

Double-Header Played Last Evening Was Premier Event.

The Episcopal and Methodist split a doubleheader in the twilight baseball league, putting up the best exhibition of the pastime seen this year. The Episcopalists lost the first by the score of 5 to 3, but won the last in a seventh inning rally by scoring two runs with the score tied.

The first game went the regular five innings, the Methodists getting three runs in the first inning and won in the third with another. The Episcopalists scored two runs in the second and one in the third.

Last Game Long One.

The second game went seven innings, two over the regular number. Each team scored one run in the first. The Methodists got another in the fourth and the Episcopalists tied the score in the fifth. The sixth inning was a blank. In a rally in the seventh the Episcopalists scored two more runs, while the Methodists failed to count.

Babin and Bartoli pitched for the Episcopalists and Moore was on the mound for the Methodists. Both pitched a good ball and had good support. The games were the closest that have been played during the season and enthusiasm was always running high. The lineup follows:

MARK COUNTRY ROADS.

The Lee County Board of Supervisors, or the individual highway commissioners might perform a very valuable service to the people of the county and to visitors by erecting markers on all important roads, giving directions and mileage.

The state law provides for such markings by the Highway Commissioners. Section 40 of the Road and Bridge law of Illinois provides that the Highway Commissioners of each Town or Road District shall have power and it shall be their duty: "To cause to be erected and kept in repair at the forks or crossing place of the most important public roads, post and guide boards,
with plain inscription thereon, in letters
and figures, giving directions and distances to the most noted places to which such road may lead."

The Board of Supervisors of Ogle county, our neighbor on the north, has already taken such action, which has met with popular approval there as evidenced by the following article from the Ogle County Republican, published at Oregon:

By recent order of the Ogle supervisors a fine set of markers have been painted and erected upon a post at a the principal corners in Ogle county.
The boards are about four inches in width, two feet long—arrow shape.
The marking at the Catholic church corner in this city reads: Forrester 18 miles, Mt. Morris 6 miles, Byron 11 miles. They are being erected under the supervision of Alex. Anderson, Co.
Supt. of Highways, and an improvement we have long needed in Ogle county. The County Board has the thanks of every citizen of Ogle and many a bewildered tourist.

EVILS OF GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.

The Whiteside Sentinel, published at Morrison, Ill., has the following to say
of government ownership:

There are 1,001 reasons against government ownership with its resultant strangulation of individual or national development. Here are some of them:

- Government ownership—
- Discourages initiative,
- Promotes autocracy,
- Retards development,
- Breeds paternalism,
- Builds political machines,
- Confiscates property,
- Destroys efficiency,
- Extends governmental espionage,
- Perpetuates bureaucracy,
- Creates class distinctions,
- Encourages official insolence,
- Impairs communication,
- Delays transportation,
- Makes people dependents,
- Rewards incompetency,
- Eliminates competition,
- Creates monopolies,
- Establishes wage inequalities,
- Debauches the electorate,
- Entices people from farms,
- Discriminates against private enterprise,
- Imposes high taxes,
- Increases rates,
- Diminishes service,
- Spreads dry rot,
- Provokes profanity,

WASH THE STREETS.

Dixon's pavements need cleansing.
And after they are once clean, they will soon need it again. Would it not be wise and practical for the city to buy a street flusser so that pavements could be kept clean at all times

Dixon has a fine lot of paving for a city this size. In fact, too great a stretch of paving to be kept clean by hand labor or by flushing with a hose.
The street department cannot be criticized for failure to keep the streets
clean unless it is provided with efficient apparatus.

And furthermore, Dixon has invested
a great deal of money in street paving
—an investment that is greatly discounted unless the pavements are kept clean and sanitary. A little further expenditure would give us the maximum value of our pavement investment.

GREAT MEN'S CHICKENS.

Not everybody knows that Premier Clemenceau, David Lloyd George, Premier Orlando and even a second Woodrow Wilson came over on the good ship G. W. with the president, but such is the case.

They are high-bred French roosters
and were en route to Alabama, and each has been donated by the distinguished statesman whose name he bears. They go to the Alabama roads committee, and are to be the prize roosters in a great rooster sale to be held the middle of August in Sumter county, to raise funds for a new bridge across the Tombigbee river.

The four birds named are expected to bring about $25,000 and it is hoped to realize $150,000 from the entire sale.

Secretary Baker, Secretary Daniels,
General Pershing and Sir Douglas Haig
have been approached for contributions, and take it all in all, the sale will represent as great a number of dignitaries gather under one roof as did the peace conference.

It is to be hoped that as great harmony will be displayed by the feathered ambassadors as by their great namesakes,
and as little disposition to crow
over one another.

WHILE WE WERE ASLEEP.

Replying to a toast by the Lord
Mayor of London, Dr. Epitacio Pessoa, president of Brazil, said:

"I wish to avail myself of this opportunity to tell you that Brazil does not forget the great share you had in her economic evolution, by supplying the means for the founding of banks, for the construction of railways, for the improvement of our ports, and for every sort of enterprise in our country."

Wouldn't it have been a very happy thing if the United States had been so involved in the economic evolution of Brazil?

Taking it for granted that we might luxuriate at leisure in South America,
we went so soundly asleep that John Hag came from afar and stole the bed
from under us.

A trans-Atlantic air flight already ceases to thrill. An aviator will have to start for Mars to get on the front page before long.

A good way to try the kaiser and his partners in crime would be to make them drink from the wells they have poisoned.

A man who will beat up his wife when not more than half of one per cent
drunk is anything but an exemplary citizen.

Those trees that the kaiser is sawing up—are they weeping willies?

45 YEARS AGO IN DIXON TELEGRAPH

The Dixon firemen received a call from the Chicago department to come to that city and assist in fighting a bad fire which was raging there. A special train on the Northwestern had been arranged for and the Dixon firemen were at the depot ready to board it when word was received that the fire was under control and help was not needed.

a drawer.

The school census of the south side

Quite Simple Remedy.
Men who are compelled to work at night frequently are heard to complain that they are unable to sleep in the daytime. We have suffered from that affliction while working on a morning newspaper. We know of but one sure cure. That is to get a job working days. The desire to sleep in the daytime then becomes as natural as breathing.—Kansas City Star.

That Much Assured.
A somewhat impetuous young fellow rashly engaged himself to a charming young thing, who shortly after the excitement had subsided began to evince doubts. Said she: "How long,
dear, do you think we shall have to be engaged?" "Well, sweetheart," said the young man, cheerily, "I have enough money to last for six months,
I think."

NACHUSA MAN BETTER.

Robert Herbst of Nachusa, who suffered severe injuries on the afternoon of July 1, when he was knocked out of a lay mow, alighting on his head and shoulders on the floor, is reported to be well on the road to recovery. His injuries will very likely keep him laid up for a few weeks, however.

Loyal, but Not Honest.

How a man may be honorable in big things but dishonorable in lesser is shown by the story told of Prince Charles Edward, the Pretender. After the Pretender's defeat at the battle of Culloden Moor in 1746, the prince took refuge in the home of a Scottish peasant. There was a reward of £30,000 for the capture of the fugitive,
but, although the peasant knew this,
he did not betray his royal guest.
Later, this same peasant, who had scorned to possess himself of great wealth by disloyal means, stole a cow,
and was tried, convicted and hanged,
stealing being a capital offense in those days.

To Protect the Trees.

From Bordeaux comes a description of a new method of protecting fruit trees against late spring frosts. This consists of spraying them with a chemical mixture called agelarine, said by its maker to be compounded from the juices of certain plants. It is a liquid, and may be handled in the ordinary hand-spray pump, but after it has been applied and exposed to the air it acquires a waxy consistency and has the appearance of a sugared or resinous coating, which is not washed off by rain and lasts for from two to five weeks effectively.

RODS GIVE NO PROTECTION

French Vine Growers Find They De-

rive No Benefit From Metal Rods They Erected.

The vine-growing region of the Gi-ronde, in France, has been quite extensively equipped in recent years with tall metal rods, similar to lightning rods, known as parapoles, or "electric Niagaras," and alleged to afford protection from hailstorms. A careful study of the functioning of these rods has recently been published by M. E. Courty of the University of Bordeaux. The statistics presented show that numerous hailstorms have occurred in the vicinity of nearly all the rods. Moreover, according to M.
Courty, there has been no obvious change in the character of these storms since the erection of the rods.
His article points out some of the principal reasons for the erroneous conclusions that others have drawn in favor of them; for example, the fact that, normally, only one thunderstorm in five is attended by hail; that the area over which hail falls is normally very small in comparison with that covered by the thunderstorm, and hail tends to occur in scattered patches or narrow bands; and, lastly, that a district in which hail has fallen for two or three years in succession often remains free from hail for years, regardless of the installation of hail-protecting devices.

MAKE USE OF WASTE HEAT

Councilors of Reykjavik, Iceland, Apply System That Reduces the Taxation of the Citizens.

The city council of Reykjavik, Iceland, has now begun the baking of bread in a special bakery in connection with the gas works, where modern machinery has been installed in a special building. The result was excellent, in that the waste heat from the gas works is being used in a practicable and profitable manner, and in the course of a short time all the black bread which may be needed
will be baked in the new bread factory.

The idea was that of a young student there, and it is considered one of the best means of saving coal, time and money. Three-pound loaves have been completely baked in three hours
in considerable numbers.

Look Decent.

Bobby's father was a photographer,
and the little fellow had often seen him take pictures and heard him admonish the people to "Look pleasant, please." One day he obtained a small, wornout camera and pretended to take his little playmate's picture. Getting her to stand for a snapshot, he directed: "Now, Hazel, stand still and look decent, please."

Animals in Hedges.

Those quaint box hedges, which one sometimes sees nowadays in the British isles, cut-out on the top into curious little shapes of birds and animals,
are of exceedingly ancient lineage.
Pliny the Younger, in describing the garden of one of his villas, mentions
"animals in box, facing each other,"
and this was, perhaps, in about the year 100 A. D.

Be It Ever So Humble.

The heart goes out on leaden wings
in hopeless longing. The pent-up heat of unspent love fevers the dispirited soul. The mind's eye narrows its concentrated energy on a single spot.
Anguish, sweetly bitter, slows the beat of a downcast heart. A veil passes over the world—and again is gone.

HAMILTON PEOPLE— PLAN FINE MEMORIAL

Residents of Hamilton township are planning on the erection of a very fitting memorial to the young men who went from that township and engaged in the world war. A committee has been named to proceed with the plans and some ideas have been advanced as to the style of memorial to be erected. The plan most favored is the selection of a large native boulder, on which will probably be placed a bronze plate, bearing the names of those who were in the service, there being over 20 from Hamilton township. It has been suggested that the memorial be placed in the same lot on which stands the Hamilton town hall, a program to be arranged with all of the members of the Lee county exemption board present.

TWO AUTO MISHAPS DOWNTOWN FRIDAY

The corner of First street and Galena avenue was a conspicuous place for automobile accidents yesterday afternoon. About 3:30 o'clock the big Marmon car belonging to the H. G. Reynolds family turned the corner going north when one of the rear wheels came off. The fact that the car was being driven at a very slow rate of speed is doubtless responsible for the fact that it was not badly damaged.

A few minutes after the wheel had been replaced, two young women driving a Ford collided with a Dodge run about belonging to Iowa tourists. The Ford suffered a damaged front tire while the touring machine had both front fenders badly bent.

EXPECT BIG CROWD AT SUNDAY'S GAME

Rockford Maroons and Dixon Browns promise the base ball fans of the city an interesting game at Brown Field tomorrow afternoon and indications are for a big crowd of fans out to see the return of Carp Huber to a Dixon diamond. For the past few years Huber has been making his home in Morrison, where he has been pitching some fine ball, and it is said by those who have seen him work lately that he is much better than he was when he left Dixon for the Whiteside county city. Killian will be on the receiving end of the Dixon battery and the entire team has been rebuilt.

Charles Rock, Well Known Actor, Dies

By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, July 12.—Charles Rock, the well known English actor, died in London today.

Charles Rock made his first appearance on the stage in 1885 and in 1892 appeared with John, now Sir John Hare, and remained with him six years. He accompanied Hare on his first American tour in 1895. Rock's reputation was based on his interpretation of character parts in various plays from 1904 to 1913. He was born in India in 1866, his real name being Arthur Charles Rock De Fabek.

GIVE LAYMEN SEATS IN M. E. MEET, PLEA

Rev. W. B. Newton has the following in Chicago Tribune:
A determined fight to give laymen seats in the annual conferences of the Methodist Episcopal church will be made this fall in the Rock River conference, which meets at St. James' church, Ellis avenue and Forty-sixth street, October 8, and in all the other conferences of the church.
The fight has been opened by the issuance of an appeal signed by many of the leading laymen of the denominations, and many sympathizing ministers asking for a favorite vote this fall.
The appeal said the Methodist Episcopal church was the only church among the Protestant bodies which did not admit laymen to seats in its annual body.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Toledo, O., July 12.—Disagreement between Oliver Pecord and W. Pecord said in reply to Barbour that he would adhere to his original ruling that the affair ended in the third round as the towel was thrown into the ring before the bell sounded for resumption of hostilities in the fourth.

There Are Moments When Married Life Seems Quite Endurable Even to a Man Who Thinks He is Henpecked.

INSPECT POLO "ARSENAL."

J. W. Sterling, Capt. Lloyd Lewis and Ralph Lievan spent Thursday evening at the home of the Wamsley Brothers near Polo inspecting the wonderful collection of fire-arms, etc., owned by those gentlemen. The Wamsley Brothers have a veritable arsenal in their home.

WAIT FOR MORE OIL.

Mr. and Mrs. John Coffman, of Polo, were Dixon traders Friday.

Plant Changes.

Some remarkable variations in plant structure and color from exposure to the sun at different hours of the day have been brought to the notice of the Royal Microscopical Society of England by Col. R. E. Rawson. In flowers of the common nasturtium—trapaeculum majus—the low sun of the early morning developed yellow coloring matter, the middle sun of mid-day stimulated the violets, blues and purples. The color of the foliage and lobing of the leaves also changed.

Old Rivers and New.

Henry praised to me lately the manners of an old-established, calm, well-behaved river, as perfectly distinguished from those of a new river. A new river is a torrent; an old one slow and steadily supplied. What happens in any part of the old river relates to what befalls in every other part of it. 'Tis full of compensations, resources and reserve funds.—Emerson's Journal.

Public Virtue.

That patriotism which, catching its inspiration from on high, and leaving at an immeasurable distance below all lesser, groveling, personal interests and feelings, animates and prompts to deeds of self-sacrifice, of valor, of devotion, . . . that is public virtue; that is the noblest, the sublimest of all public virtues!—Clay.

Life's Great Lesson.

The lesson that life dings into us with such ceaseless iteration that it seems impossible that any of us could ever fail to hear it is: To make haste to be kind.—Rhoda Broughton.

The Way Out.

If a man or a machine is unable to accomplish a task it should be turned over to a woman and a hairpin.—London Answers.

The Telegraph now in its 69th year is the oldest paper in Lee Co.

When You Are Chilled.

Chilled hands or feet should not be put near the fire or in hot water, as this causes the blood vessels to dilate too rapidly and chilblains result. The chilled members may be put in tepid water and a little hot water added from time to time, but the best plan is to warm by exercise and by rubbing.

Diogenes Knew.

Diogenes held his lantern before the face of a woman. It was Christmas morning and she was remarking: "How darling! It was just what I wanted!" Whereat, the old fellow shook his head in despair and passed on. "She is counting at this very moment," mused Diog., "on what she can exchange it for."

Origin of Apple Dumplings.

A dumpling is a good old English dish and comes from the word dumpen, that meant to throw down suddenly and the diminutive ending ling. The idea was a little cake that was made by throwing raw rough dough into boiling water.

Mrs. Arthur Edwards, Miss Elizabeth Edwards, and Mrs. J. O'Brien were here today from Amboy.

Vain Pursuit.

"So Nibltz is dead?" "Yes." "Did he leave any property?" "Nothing to speak of. Nibltz was the kind of man who had an idea that fortune was always just around the corner." "But he never succeeded in overtaking her?" "No. He has either mistaken in the location of the corner or he lingered in the middle of the block until fortune moved on to some other corner."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Ancient Needlework.

The early Britons were expert in needlework, and the earliest (British) Church of England before the fifth century won fame from its "hand-maidens of the church," who made linens and altar frontals for numberless churches in Europe. Tapestry, the work of queens like Matilda and noble ladies in olden times was largely needlework.

Only One Kind of Right Action.

Rightness expresses of actions what straightness does of lines; and there can no more be two kinds of right action than there can be two kinds of straight lines.—Herbert Spencer.

Henry Rebeck, of Palmyra, was in Dixon this morning.

Would Fill Colleges with Foreign Students

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, D. C., July 12.—Declaring that the world is looking to the United States "to assume the responsibilities of leadership in education and in science" made vacant by Germany through the war, Commissioner of Education Claxton in a letter to college and university presidents made public today, asks that steps be taken by American schools to attract students from Europe.

SOLDIERS' LETTERS

FROM SGT. C. B. SHAW.

The following letter is from Sgt. C. B. Shaw, son of Mrs. Creider, of Oregon, Ill., and a nephew of Mrs. E. A. Fuller of this city:

Decie, France, May 12.

Having just returned from a visit to places of interest throughout England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, I am still very tired but expect to get a good night's rest tonight, so should feel much better tomorrow.

I have seen so many, many things of world-wide interest that I hardly know how to begin to tell you about my very splendid trip, especially when I am obliged to put it in writing. I dare say I could easily write a four hundred page book on what I experienced and saw in each of the four countries, so if my description of the trip is a little brief and therefore contrary to what I have just said I am sure you will be considerate enough to realize that I am putting this all on paper and not speaking to you in person.

Going back a bit and working up to how I came about this leave, is in all probability much more interesting to me than it would be to any listener, however I am sure you will appreciate the tale so will tell it to you.

On April 28th, at 9 a. m. I was called into the office and the leave officer said "Shaw, inasmuch as your leave to Italy was turned down after it came through approved (due to the fact that Italy withdrew from the conference) I am going to give you a chance to visit Great Britain. Would you like to go and have you sufficient funds to make the trip?" To make a long story short I borrowed $100 from one of the lieutenants, threw a change of clothes into a traveling bag I borrowed and was gone to Paris. From there I went to LeHarve, then sailed across the English Channel to Southampton, Eng. and from there I went to London and spent the day, going about in sight seeing cars, etc. The next day I went into Wales and visited Cardiff, Bristol, Fishguard and such places of interest. Then I sailed across the St. George Channel to Cork, Ireland, where I also spent a day visiting such places as postcard views of are herewith enclosed. I visited the Blarney Castle and saw the Blarney stone, but was not superstitious enough to kiss it as most tourists do.

If I could only spend several days with you and tell you what a beautiful country Ireland is I know you would appreciate it. All that is there is nature's own work and I don't wonder that writers call it the garden spot of the earth. It would be impossible for me to describe the beauty of the country and the good nature of the Irish men. If you will look the postcards over carefully I know you will agree with me on this point.

From Cork I went to Killarney, which is supposed to be the most beautiful spot in Ireland. I won't try to describe the beauty of this place, you can verify your opinion from the views. They will be self-explanatory, anyway I never expect to see a more beautiful sight than I had the pleasure of seeing in Killarney, Ireland.

As I said when I started my letter that I could easily write four hundred pages on what I saw and experienced in each country is indeed very true, but inasmuch as my time in the army is not my own I am sure you will quite agree with me that I have given you a fair idea of Bray, Ireland in the time I had to spare, so I must hurry on and tell you a little about the rest of my trip, after I give you a description of Bray (county of Wicklow). I think, however, the views will prove more interesting than all I can say. Nevertheless, the town of Bray is beautifully situated on the east coast of Ireland straight across the Irish sea from Holyhead and between the lofty promontory called Bray Head. In the foreground is the fluctuant and ever-changing sea; in the background a semi-circle of mountains whose beauty and artistic slopes I would find hard to describe.

It is easy to account for Bray's popularity with visitors. The town is clean and well kept, well laid out and to the best possible advantage; moreover the streets are brilliant at night, thanks again to the discovery of electricity; and all other matters affecting the health and comfort of residents have been dealt with in a masterly manner by the local authorities.

My next stop was Dublin and incidentally I was there the same day the Irish-American delegates were. Our ex-Governor Duhanne was the main delegate and I saw him as he was hurried through the streets in a machine. The city of Dublin is a beautiful sight and the people treated me fine. The country in the immediate vicinity of Dublin contains much that is picturesque. The scenery along the coast is in general much like cities located on the coast I have seen elsewhere. I will attach here to some pictures of the places of interest I visited in and near Dublin.

I find I have undertaken some job but inasmuch as I had the pleasure of seeing all these places I want to make my trip as clear and as interesting to you as I can, therefore choose this way, even though it is a little odd.

I went from Dublin to Belfast. This city is a manufacturing town and a thrifty city, but as most seaport towns a little hum. I only spent a day in Belfast, nevertheless I made my time count while I was there, and with the aid of sight-seeing trips took in the entire city in a hurried way, then sailed across the North Sea to Glasgow, Scotland. I found the Scottish city to be more like American cities than any I have seen since I left G. country. The Scottish people are fine and look like American people. Honestly I thought I was looking into the eyes of Yanks. I am sure you will find the post cards of Glasgow interesting. The accommodations at the Y. M. C. A. in Glasgow were so pleasing that I hated to leave but had to after a day and a half visit, so I went to Sterling and from there to Edinburgh, where I spent two days sight-seeing, then went back to London.

I had a wonderful trip and it cost me so very little. I shall never regret the trip. If there are any questions you care to ask by all means do so. I will be only too glad to answer them.

I am sending you a lot of postcard views, a map of Great Britain outlining where I went, an Irish schilale or billy club as we would call it. I bought it in Killarney, Ireland. A Scottish bagpipe, just a small one for a souvenir; a very small spurn, a part of the Scottish uniform; a jewel case made of bog oak and dug from the ground in Ireland in a petrified state also a paper knife of the bog oak, and a book of views of Edinburgh, Scotland.

Will write you again tomorrow. This letter and a duplicate of it has worn me out. Lots of love and send me the papers please. I may get some news. Haven't received one since before Christmas, and everyone of your letters said you sent the papers. I know you

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally that Nobody can tell.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, because of its beautiful darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart color and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT

Eat less meat if you feel Backache or have Bladder trouble—Salts fine for Kidneys.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get so clogged that you get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush out the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

FROM JAKE SNYDER.

A letter recently received by Mr. and Mrs. Benj. Snyder from their son, Jake:

Ahrwilder, June 13, 1919.

Dear Dad and Mother: Got two letters from you this week. So you have a garden. That is fine. That ought to be a good job if mother don't work her head off. No Dad, I don't think we will be there by the Fourth. You can't tell a thing about it. Some think we will be on the water by the Fourth, but I don't look for it. Things don't look good. I haven't enlisted yet. I sure would like to see London and Brussels and that is my only chance. Have to have a hundred dollars before I can get a leave. It don't take that much. Can live cheaper in London than Paris but I am still on the fence. Some of the fellows that have enlisted have drawn as high as three hundred dollars transportation money.

I had a fine trip Saturday and Sunday. Went to Weisbaden. It is a town of about 100,000—108 miles up the Rhine. Altogether I drove about 250 miles. Left there Sunday night at 11:30 and got back at 4 a. m. Pretty good time. Sure is a great place. It is a big summer resort, hot water spring. Staid at one of the best hotels, some class, too, Dad. Yesterday I took a trip up the Rhine to Cologne by boat. Now I have seen about all that there is to see around here except Berlin and I am apt to see that before long, but I might as well see it all, because I don't expect to come over here again but for staying in another year, I can't make up my mind.

I will see Dudley Friedlin tomorrow. We have a big blow-out here—track meet, circus, wild west show, and everything, even peanuts and ice cream. The whole division will be here. You said that Clarence McPherson is in the 4th. Haven't seen him yet. He must be in division headquarters.

I won't know till I hit New York

whether I will be sent to Camp Grant of Camp Kearney and that, I think, will be when they get the bridge built. Well, Dad, it is getting late so will have to cut this short.

Our president is having a hard time with the wops. It is not safe for an American in Italy. That goes to show how grateful these foreigners are. I am off of them all and I guess Wilson will be, too, before long.

Love to mother. Here is hoping you all have a good Fourth. Wish I could be with you but don't worry. We are going to have ice cream and send up a few rockets ourselves.

Got Aunt Cora's letter and one from Leone and one from Fred. Love to all. Your son, JAKE.

Millwork

When in need of Millwork or Interior Trim of any kind come to us.

Interior, unseasoned material for inside finish is expensive at any price. Poorly finished, unseasoned lumber will not take stain, wax or varnish properly and the cracks and checks will be a constant source of expense and annoyance.

All Trim sold by us is beautifully finished and thoroughly seasoned.

We turn out this millwork ourselves, in our own mills. We know the Quality of our own goods and our prices are the lowest possible consistent with the Quality we deliver.
